Doughboys Advance On The Central Road To Manila

STRONG AIR COVER

In Europe 3 Allied Armies Assault German Positions

By International News Service

Doughboys of the American Sixth Army advanced from points 12 miles inland on the central road to Manila today while gathering enemy resistance was disrupted by the guns of the U. S. Seventh Fleet.

Within 100 miles of the Philippine capital on the fifth day of the Luzon invasion, the Yanks drove under strong air cover toward the village of Bayambang, about 14 miles from the Lingayen beach-head.

At the same time, sharp fighting developed along the eastern flank of the Luzon line, and in the hills to the north of the Manaoag-Pozorubio road.

A communique from Gen. Douglas MacArthur declared the fighting indicated "our forward units are entering a zone of enemy concentration."

Japanese-held areas far ahead of the advancing troops were blasted by army and navy planes. The Grace Park airfield, outside Manila, and Manila itself, were pounded by four-motored Liberators.

Meanwhile, 46 small Japanese freighters, attempting to unload at San Fernando, at the northeast entrance to Lingayen Gulf, were sunk or heavily damaged by warships of the Seventh Fleet.

Warships under Vice Admiral Thomas Kinkaid poured shells against San Fernando's port facilities and destroyed three ammunition dumps. His heavy guns smashed the entire road south from San Fernando to Lingayen.

Low-flying planes strafed and bombed speeding enemy supply columns on nearby Luzon. Other planes working in conjunction with Filipino guerrilla ground forces, harried Japanese attempting to organize defense positions.

LUXURY TAXES

Statistics show that when war is waged jewelry sales swing upward. The tax rate on jewelry was doubled early last year, but this had no effect on sales and tax collections increased substantially. In 1942 this tax yielded $42,000,000, in 1943 $88,000,000 and in 1944 $113,000,000.

Taxes on furs and cosmetics also show similar increases in revenue. It is estimated that luxury taxes on jewelry, furs, cosmetics, liquor, tobacco and admissions are now bringing in more than $4,000,000,000 a year.

According to a statement issued by the Tax Institute of New York, a research agency, the tax on alcoholic beverages is making the greatest contribution toward paying the money costs of the war. In 1941 it netted $820,000,000. By 1944 it had almost doubled, amounting to $1,618,000,000. Tobacco taxes jumped from $689,000,000 to $988,000,000. Transportation taxes now yield $369,000,000, communications taxes $231,000,000 and admissions taxes $205,000,000.

MATCH SHORTAGE

From New York comes a story to the effect that a match shortage impends. And it is a shortage of such magnitude that the current cigarette shortage will not hold a candle to it.

A tobacco company executive, H. A. Oriol, representing 43 wholesale distributors of tobacco, says that the full facilities of match manufacturers will be tied up for five months in filling government orders and that during this period no matches will be made for civilian use except the large wooden ones of the strike anywhere type.

THE FARMER'S SHARE

The United States has just finished its record agricultural year in terms of dollars. Latest estimate of total farm income in 1944 is $21,000,000,000. The income consists of prices received by farmers for products sold and government benefit payments. The latter totaled $800,000,000.

This is a situation which is strengthening to American economy if it can be maintained. During the depression years of the 30's farm income averaged $5,000,000,000 a year and the national income $60,000,000,000. Thus the farmer was getting one-twelfth of the national income. Last year the farmer received one-seventh of the total income of the nation, which is in more direct line with realities. There are 25,000,000 people on the 5,000,000 farms of the United States—between one-fifth and one-sixth of the total population.

If the present level of farm income can be maintained, the entire national economy will be more healthy.

Sea-Air Battle Off Indo-China Increases in Fury

The mounting sea-air battle off French Indo-China, in which 38 Japanese ships of four Philippine-bound convoys have been sunk or damaged, indicates Tokyo intends to risk its remaining sea strength in an effort to save Luzon Island, the military observers in Washington believe.

The blazing battle between Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet and elements of the Imperial Japanese Navy may be the opening phase of one of the war's mightiest air-sea struggles, they declared.

Japanese losses included six fully-loaded troop transports and 19 other vessels, among them a light cruiser and several destroyers or destroyer escorts. Thirteen other ships were heavily damaged. Fleet Commander Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed.

In Europe, three Allied armies joined in a final assault on the German positions in the Belgium-Luxembourg bulge, forcing Nazi Field Marshal Karl Gerd Von Rundstedt to a line extending from near La Roche, on the northern tip of the salient, down through Champion and Amberloup.

Two counter-attacks launched by the Germans in an effort to keep open their escape route east to St. Vith, were repulsed by Allied forces in the Bihain sector.

The American First Army entered the town of Langli in this area, while other American units advanced south of the Main La Roche-Vielvaal road toward Wibrin, northwest of Houffalize, strategic communication hub.

Southwest of La Roche, Allied forces captured the village of Hives and Michamps in a 2,500-yard advance. British Second Army troops and forces of the American Third Army which joined at St. Hubert, punched in the bulge at the southwestern tip.

In the Haguenau Forest sector, German armor ground against American Maginot Line positions, but were unable to score a breakthrough.

In beleaguered Budapest, Red Army forces fought to within less than a mile of the Danube, clearing another 135 blocks of city streets. German counter-attacks to the west and northwest of the city were thrown back, Moscow announced.

There still was no Soviet confirmation of an offensive, reported by the Germans, below Warsaw.

This Is News

Washington, Jan. 12

WHEN harassed members of the employer class, anti-New Deal Democrats or Republicans denounce the Wagner Labor Act as a monstrous legislative concoction and charge the National Labor Relations Board with calculated venom and prejudice, that is not news. They have been doing that for a long time now—and a good many persons believe their case well proven.

BUT, when demand for repeal of the Wagner Act comes from a strongly pro-Roosevelt labor union and when the official organ of this labor union insists that the NLRB is nothing more than "a standing committee of the CIO," certainly that is news. And when it is noted that the head of the strangely denunciatory union is none other than Mr. Daniel J. Tobin, close personal friend of the President; that the President selected Mr. Tobin's union before which to make his first "political" speech in his recent campaign; that Mr. Tobin, in his heavy-footed way, was one of the earliest and most earnest supporters of the fourth-term movement and is now regarded as an aspirant for the post of Secretary of Labor—when these things are considered, then the unexpected outbreak of this union, though not without its humorous side, comes pretty close to being sensational.

FOR THE Wagner Act has been proclaimed by Mr. Roosevelt and all the New Deal spokesmen, high and low, as "Labor's Magna Charta," one of the greatest documents ever devised by the mind of man. Any disparagement of it was considered akin to sacrilege and to be expected only of the political reactionaries and the "greedy rich." That it should be denounced in the official magazine of the AFL International Teamsters' Union in an article written by Mr. Thomas E. Flynn, executive assistant to Mr. Tobin, is something of a shock. Of course, one tends to discount this AFL indictment because it is not at all aimed at the gross manner in which the law is framed against industry nor the way the board is packed against the employer, but only because the rival labor faction—the CIO—is in control and thus enabled to use the law and the board to promote its own interests and sabotage AFL unions. Nonetheless, this article from a strong New Deal pro-Roosevelt labor union offers valuable testimony to the country, and, particularly, to Congress—valuable chiefly because it comes from Mr. Roosevelt's friends, not from his foes. Industry has always contended that the law is one-sided; that the NLRB is a tool of the CIO; that the employer is never right in its eyes. Heretofore, labor has denied these charges. Now the unfairness of the law and the CIO domination of a highly important AFL union, but proclaimed by it.

THUS, it seems, that no one is satisfied with the law and the board save the CIO. Reflection upon these facts ought to make it clear to Congress that the law needs revision if not repeal and that a new NLRB board composed of men who are subservient neither to any labor faction nor to any industry, but big enough to be neutral, nonpartisan and concerned solely with the public interest, should be created. After this blast from the Teamsters' Union, the logical course for Congress should be clear. The character of the law and the conduct of the board both call for revision. There seems no excuse to dodge the issue. Here, on the testimony of men friendly to the Administration and affiliated with labor, is a labor law which is being prostituted and a board which is being manipulated. Under the circumstances, failure to act with stamp Congress as craven, afraid of the loud-mouthed Hillmans and Murrays, whose tenure of power depends largely upon their ability to terrorize members of Congress. The split of labor on this issue gives Congress its opportunity to rid itself of the great labor bully which has grown up in the last twelve years and is now throwing its weight around in all directions. It would be a pity to pass the opportunity by, but it probably will be lost because there is neither enlightenment, energy nor courage enough in Congress to see the situation clearly and act promptly.

AS FOR THE blast of the AFL union about the CIO dominance, it should not arouse sympathy. The truth is the AFL in this whole Roosevelt regime, has been the prize political sap. With full knowledge that the CIO leaders had a political link with Mr. Roosevelt far closer than any they could hope to establish, the AFL has plugged along in the rear and "delivered" to Mr. Roosevelt term after term, only to see the CIO more deeply entrenched after each election. It is true that Mr. William Green and Mr. Daniel Tobin are "Bill" and "Dan" to the President, but they have not got the White House status of Mr. Philip Murray and Mr. Sydney Hillman. "Bill" and "Dan" have the status of old family servants toward whom Mr. Roosevelt has a real affection. But Murray and Hillman are on a different level. He does not patronize nor talk down to them—he consults and confers with them. The CIO is his labor faction. His wife is a member of the organization and his political obligations to the CIO are heavy and well known. All of which makes this revolt of the Teamsters' Union against the Wagner Act and the NLRB extremely interesting.

BARBETTA'S FIELD GOAL ENABLES FLEETWINGS ARROWS TO SCORE VICTORY BY A SINGLE POINT

Bert Barbetta's field goal enabled the Fleetwings Arrows to score a one-point triumph over the Naval Air Supply Depot, of Philadelphia, last night in the second game on the high school court.

The Naval Air team had taken a one-point lead when Rowland scored a long shot but with less than a minute remaining to be played, Barbetta scored from under the net to give the Arrows their win.

Devon Smith again led the Wings in scoring with 19 points while Rowland's seven points made him high man for the losing aggregation. The game was slow with both teams missing many easy shots.

FLEETWINGS SPARROWS WIN THEIR FIFTH GAME

The Fleetwings Sparrows won their fifth game of the Trenton Playground League by topping the Victoryettes, 35-22, on the Junior No. 4 floor, Trenton. The Majority is the only team to defeat the aircraft workers this season.

The winners were led in scoring by Marion Gillenwater who shook the cords for eight field goals. Keating led the losers with six double-deckers.

The Bristol girls took the edge early in the contest and with a trio of goals by Gillenwater and another by Walterick built up an 8-2 lead at the quarter. Keating scored the Trenton team's only goal.

Betty Duffy and Gillenwater both accounted for three field goals in the second quarter while Keating and Nidola scored for the Majority to give the Fleetwings lasses a half-time lead of 22-8.

Mr. Kucowski was removed to Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, where he was pronounced dead on arrival. He was a passenger in the car operated by McCloskey.

McCloskey was also removed to Nazareth Hospital and given treatment.

The accident, according to police, occurred shortly after one o'clock. Passing motorists extricated the two men from the wreckage of the car and Bucks County Rescue Squad took them to the hospital.

Officers are of the opinion the car skidded on ice on the highway, made more slippery by the rain and hail of the afternoon.

and American flags will be presented by Two Service Clubs of Bucks County. Five units will receive the red star award and additional units will receive the activities award for progress in scouting during the past year.

It was revealed that at the end of the year there were 1146 scouts and 446 cub scouts in the county, making an all time high as to the number of boys served by the council. The results of the training program for the year, with awards, will be given by Solomon A. Miller, council training chairman. It is expected that over 200 scouters and their guests will be in attendance at the event.

An Eagle Scout board of review for applicants who are eligible will be held in the council office on January 23rd. Plans are being made for the annual county court of honor which will be held during Boy Scout anniversary week on Sunday afternoon, February 11th.

Morrisville To Buy Radio For Police

plete four of the borough and its boundaries gathering information for the coming report.

Bleasdale also announced that the yearly garbage contract would expire on April 1, and proposed that action be taken now on bids for the work. Council agreed to advertise, with bids to be received at the February meeting.

Councilman Young, in his report on the police department, stated that Chief of Police Harry Christ began his duties January 1. It was also announced that Morrisville would now have a police office, to be located in the former borough engineer's office in the basement part of Borough Hall on Washington street. The police committee was authorized to purchase a short wave radio set as part of the office equipment so that when police are working in the office radio calls may be received there.

Council, however, emphasized that the Trenton police telephone number be called at all times, inasmuch as the police office will be occupied only a few hours a day, and only those whose business is not urgent, should use the local telephone.

In his report on the local fire departments, Councilman Caleb Cope recommended that a $250 adjustment be made to each fire company, the motion being passed by a unanimous vote.

No increase in taxes will be made this year with the rate remaining the same. An adjustment to the tax-collector's commission was passed, with the new rate two per cent for taxes collected before the penalty date, and five per cent after.

Council decided not to permit curb anchors for telephone poles. They agreed this order could be changed only under unusual circumstances.

Bristol Holds Visitors To Lone Field Goal In The Third Quarter

The St. Francis Vocational School, of Eddington, chalked up its sweetest victory in years last night on the high school floor, as it defeated Bristol High, 28-20, in a slow contest.

Ten points by Gallagher gave the St. Francis boys the triumph. It was Gallagher's double-decker which put the Vocational School in front at the start, a lead which was never relinquished.

At the half-time mark, St. Francis had a 22-14 edge. Bristol succeeded in holding the visitors to a lone field in the third quarter but the St. Francis defense held Bristol to two points in the final period.

The winners outscored Bristol from the field, 12-7, while the locals made good on six of their nine foul tries with Marvin Collins getting five out of seven.

Take Steps Toward Securing Park Site

ground as a memorial to the community's men and women in service.

These restricting clauses provide that the ball park be incorporated along with adjoining parcels of ground into the memorial park to be owned, operated and maintained by the borough; that the association have free use of the ball park, including a refreshment stand, for its athletic events; that the inside surface of the fence now used for advertising continue to be used by the association without charge by the borough, as long as the association conducts athletic events there with the association receiving the revenues of such advertising; that athletic events be permitted on Sunday as previously, and that the premises be sold subject to the payment of taxes which have been or may be levied against the ball park.

The shareholders also elected 14 directors who held a meeting following the general session for reorganization purposes at which time all officers were re-elected.

The offer of the association, along with other offers for adjoining lands, will be placed before the electors of the borough at a special election which will probably be held in April.

The residents of the community will be asked at that time to vote on the proposal.

According to the proposed plans, some of them on a very long-range program, purchase of the some 40 acres is expected to cost less than $7,000. This money is available in a reserve fund established by Borough Council. Included in the area are three sets of tennis courts, a stream and a grove where picnic grounds could be established, in addition to the ball park. Among the future prospects are the installation of a swimming pool, an auditorium, an ice-skating rink and softball diamonds.

Re-elected to head the athletic association were Dr. C. W. Moyer, president; Fred L. Nase, secretary, and Jacob L. Stonebach, treasurer. They were elected directors along with the following: Harry Benner, Robert Henry, George Collo, Walter Tice, Myles K. Fisher, Lamar Hartman, Ray Z. Hartman, Thomas Osmun, George Reese, E. S. Shearer and Dr. Willard H. Tice.

ERIE—(INS)—Frank C. Stewart, who recently retired after 50 years service with a railroad, apparently feels he has worked long enough. "I'll just take it easy, I guess," he commented when asked of his post-retirement plans.
